HISTORICAL SKETCH.

"THE YOUNG MEN'S ASSOCIATION OF THE CITY OF CHICAGO" was organized on the sixth day of February, A. D. 1841. Its objects, as expressed in the Constitution adopted for its government at that time, were, "to establish and maintain a Reading Room and Library, and to procure Literary and Scientific Lectures, and to promote the intellectual improvement of its members."

The founders of the ASSOCIATION were young men, who, having selected this city as their future place of residence, were desirous of securing, at an early day, the establishment of an institution which should afford, at comparatively trifling expense, the means of intellectual improvement for themselves and for those who might afterwards avail themselves of its privileges. From the time of its first organization up to the winter of 1850—'51, it was sustained by the voluntary contributions and efforts of its members, without having corporate powers, and thus far during the period of its existence, its success has been all that could reasonably have been anticipated, and fully equalled the expectations of its projectors; the number of members has gradually increased—the Reading Room has been kept open and supplied with the most important newspapers of the country, and with the various American and foreign Reviews and Periodicals—the Library, which, at the outset consisted of about one hundred volumes only, contributed by the friends of the ASSOCIATION, has become one of the largest in the city, embracing a valuable selection of works in all the departments of literature and science. Within the past year, efforts have been made by the Executive Committee and members generally, to place the ASSOCIATION on a more permanent basis than it has heretofore occupied. Over two hundred names have been added to the list of members, and about the sum of six hundred dollars contributed for the purpose of increasing the library; and besides this, during the last session of the legislature of this State, a liberal act of incorporation was granted, under which its affairs are now managed; and it is hoped, that within a short time, under the operation of this CHARTER, the ASSOCIATION will be permanently located in its own edifice, and placed upon a footing which will insure its success and increase its usefulness. In the language of the last Annual Report of the Executive Committee, "we have now every requisite for making this ASSOCIATION one of the largest and most flourishing institutions of the kind in the country. Our city is increasing rapidly in wealth and population, and is filled with young and enterprising men, who should become connected with it, and aid in its advancement; and well directed efforts in future, will secure to us an institution which will remain a monument to the intelligence, enterprise and benevolence of our citizens, 'more lasting than brass.' "
